HISTORIC SKETCH

Robert Bruce, the nationally famous Indian Cornetist, has been engaged to render several cornet solos. Bruce has been connected with some of the best bands in this country and is now at the head of the cornet testing department of a large band instrument factory located at Elkhart, Indiana.

Red Cloud, the great saxophone player of Sousa's Band, has also been engaged. John Phillip Sousa, the great band master, regards this Indian as one of the greatest among the many bass horn players which this country has produced. He has been offered a position in the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and in case he accepts, it will be the first time that an instrument of this character is used in a symphony orchestra.

Soprano soloists will render Indian songs by such writers as Thurlow Lindrance, Charles Wakefield Cadman and others who have made professional study of Indian melodies and characteristic Indian music.

A large platform is being erected in front of the grandstand on which an Indian village will be located, where Indian men and women may be seen engaged in making baskets of all kinds, bead work, moccasins, bows and arrows and other articles peculiarly Indian as to origin. Another village will be located in the grove where Indian cooking will be seen as done one hundred years ago.

The Pottawatomies of Northern Wisconsin are coming down with a large delegation on Indian Ponies who will take part in this celebration and enter their ponies in the races.

The Indian dances that will be given by the Menominees and Oneidas on a special stand in front of the grandstand across the track, far enough away from the audience not to annoy the crowd and children.

Ph. T. Whitelock is one of our Oneida Indian boys who has had a wide experience as a musician. He has traveled in Europe, played in Vienna Symphony Orchestra of 160 pieces, also the Bremen 100 Piece Orchestra in Munich, Germany. He has been engaged to render clarinet solos at the celebration. There are very few clarinet players who excel this Indian in his work on the clarinet.

The Oneida Indians landed on the Banks of Fox River, between De Pere and Green Bay, August 5, 1821. They were a part of the delegation of the Six Nation Indians who were contracting from the State of New York to Wisconsin, having sold their lands in that state.

This celebration is intended to illustrate the progress the Oneida Indians have made in civilization since their coming to Wisconsin and the changes in their mode of life which time has effected, made imperative by the development of the country where they settled.

The transition from the primitive life represented by the basket makers, makers of bows and arrows, axe handles, Indian brooms, who depended one hundred (100) years ago on the hunt for their sustenance and livelihood, to the Indians of the present day, engaged in all kinds of professional activities, taking part successfully in the life of the country in civilized avocations as represented by the professional musicians who appear in this celebration, although made under many unfavorable circumstances, has been gradual, but pronounced, and may fairly be taken to show again the unquestionable capacity of the Indian to adopt civilized habits of living and to follow professional avocations. Thus we are again taught the brotherhood of man and the Godhood of the Father.
